Summary

Cath Grant is a multi-media artist working from a studio in Murwillumbah, northern New South Wales. She has mounted numerous exhibitions, and encourages the work of other artists by hosting collaborative projects and exhibitions in her gallery. She is representative of the thriving arts community in the northern New South Wales region. She had two artworks chosen for the 2012 P.J. Hogan film ‘Mental’, and she recorded and sang ‘The Tree Song’ in 2019.

As well as her own work, Cath exhibits the artwork of her three children. In 2007 she curated ‘The Art of Love’ exhibition at The Casuarina Convention Centre (June 22nd – August 3rd), featuring the work of over thirty local artists including two of her own children, Joshua and Thomas Worsley.

Cath has generously donated artworks to numerous charities over the years including the Sydney Children’s Hospitals Foundation, Westmead Hospital, the Luke Batty Foundation, Tweed Hospital children’s ward, Sydney Adventist Hospital, Bear Cottage, the Queensland Homicide Victims’ Support Group and Redkite.
