Summary

Being Seen and Heard: Migrant Women Organising in Australia, A Documentary History aggregates and makes accessible to a broad audience, information about culturally and linguistically diverse (CALD) women's records in Australian repositories and private hands. It links research findings (current in 2006) to the Australian Women's Register. Researchers can search for information about a select number of CALD women, their organisations, key events and historical information about the various multicultural communities that they represent.

Dr Nicola Henningham was principal researcher for the project.

Funding for this project was provided by the National Archives of Australia.
