Details

This series A7481 consists of the policy and working files/records of the former Directorate of Women’s Royal Australian Army Corps (DWRAAC) of Army Headquarters/Army Office. It was arranged and maintained by members of the WRAAC Corps Committee to serve as one source of research material for a book to be commissioned on the History of the Corps.

Originally these records were maintained in individual files arranged under a two number system, but they have been rearranged [and judging from the quantity also culled] a number of times since the Directorate was disbanded during 1980. Consequently a single number control system was imposed on the remaining items by the Archives. These include binders containing material from a number of previous Directorate files, entire former files and parts of former files having the same original number. Item [1] is an index to them.
